Vepco Awarded $1 Million Contract

A contract valued at almost $1 million has been awarded by Virginia Electric and Power Company to Colt Industries' Power System Division for three engine-generators.

The units will be used as standby sources of power for the first two units at Vepco's $1 billion North Anna Power Station, assuring a reliable supply of standby power to the station at all times. Each unit consists of a 12-cylinder diesel engine rated at 4,250 horsepower dirlving a 3,000 kilowatt generator capable of reaching full loud in 30 seconds.

Construction is under way at North Anna on nuclear powered generating units scheduled for commercial operation in 1974 and 1975. Each is capable of generating 940,000 kilowatts. Plans have been announced for the third and fourth units of the same size at North Anna, due for operation in 1977 and 1978.

The work at North Anna is part of Vepco's $2.1 billion construction program for new gnerating units and support systems from 1971 through 1975. An additional $1 billion will be spent from 1976 through 1979 on new generating additions alone.

Farmers talk funny

Milk base, loafing barns, B.C.I.A., S.L.B., bulk curing, feed conversion ratios. Terms commonly used by farmers sound very strange to someone who doesn't know farming or farmers.

Here at Fidelity we have agricultural people who know what farming means to us and the community. They work at agricultural financing every day, all year long. They are highly trained and keep abreast of market trends, new management methods and legislation that affects farming.

But what sets them apart is the way they "feel" about farming. They take into consideration assets men have that can't be computed. Assets like character, integrity and the willingness to tackle the tough job.

This feeling has been translated into a policy that goes like this: "Helping you grow helps us grow."

If you have a financial need related to farming, call us. We talk funny too!

Social Security Q. & A.

Send your questions to: Social Security Questions and Answers, P. O. Box 2496, Lynchburg, Va. 24501.

Q — I am a single woman who will be 65 in five months. My regular job is not covered by social security, but a number of years ago, I did work part time at a job covered by social security. Could this part-time work have made me eligible for Medicare?

A — The part-time work you did may make you eligible to enroll in the hospital insurance part of Medicare. Since you will be 65 this year, you'll need about three years of work credit under the speakers of the evening: social security to qua lify for this part of Medicare. The people at your social security office will be glad to help you determine if you are eligible for hospital insurance. In addition, regardless of the amount of work you have had under social security, you will be eligible at 65 to sign up for the voluntary medical insurance part of Medicare Be sure to call or visit your social security office about three months before your 65th birthday to sign up for Medicare.

Q — My mother has been discharged from the hospital and placed in a nursing home that has been approved by Medicare as an extended care facility. The nursing home advised us, however, that Medicare will not pay for her care because her type of illness is not covered. Is it true that some illnesses are not covered by Medicare?

A — It is not the type of illness your mother has, but the level of treatment she needs that is a factor in determining whether or not Medicare will help pay for her services in an extended care facility. Medicare can pay only when a patient needs continuing skilled nursing care,not just help with such things as bathing, eating, dressing, walking and taking medicine at the right time. There are other requirements, too. Your mother can check her copy of "Your Medicare Handbook" for more details.
